AgriBiz & Farm Expo Takes New Approach

The S.C. AgriBiz and Farm Expo keeps getting better and better. The format has changed to allow more demonstrations, more interaction, and more opportunities for farmers to hone their skills in a variety of areas. Agricultural Education, Innovation, and Connections is the theme of the expo, which will be held Jan. 14 and 15 in Florence.

Several optimization clinics—which allow farmers to optimize performance from their equipment—will be offered on Wednesday, Jan. 14. John Deere, New Holland, Case IH, and other companies are doing Combine Clinics in the morning, and Hay Equipment Clinics will be offered for cattlemen and livestock producers in the afternoon.

"The idea is for exhibitors and farmers to interact via clinics, demonstrations, and other forums over the two days at the expo. These are opportunities for growers to improve on efficiency and production," explained Jody Martin, Director of the S.C. AgriBiz Expo.

Wednesday is also Youth Day, with Kirby Player of Clemson University taking the lead in coordinating activities. Special programs, clinics, and education will be targeted toward FFA and any student interested in agriculture. The S.C. Department of Agriculture will host the Agritourism Mini Conference this day as well.

The floor of the Florence Civic Center was completely filled last year with booths and demonstrations of all kinds. This year's event promises to be even bigger.

The food will be different this year. Wednesday's lunch will be offered by the S.C. Pork Producers Association and Thursday's lunch by the S.C. Seafood Alliance. Sea Eagle Market will cater both meals with fresh S.C. Certified foods, cooked fresh on site.

Later in the afternoon on Wednesday, Dr. Kendall Kirk, Clemson Precision Ag Specialist, will conduct the Precision Ag Data Management Clinic. Its purpose is to teach farmers how to use the crop yield data they get from their equipment. Another exciting presentation will be given by Chris Robson of CaronEast, a company that sells agricultural unmanned aircraft systems, or "UAS," often referred to as drones. He will discuss the data collection capabilities and their connections to grower's precision ag tools.

The popular Taste of South Carolina will wrap up the first day, featuring S.C. products and the S.C. Chef Ambassadors. Registration is required for this event.

Thursday will be Farm Bureau Day, with Farm Bureau members getting in free. The day will kick off with the Commissioner's Breakfast, which benefits the Commissioner's School for Agriculture. Throughout the day many exhibitors will offer demonstrations in their booths.

These demos will be an exciting, interactive education and connection between the farmers and exhibitors. "We have seven different time slots, and each exhibitor can do a 10- to 15-minute demonstration in his booth throughout the day," Martin said. "Farmers can select what they want to see, and the exhibitor can talk to a dozen farmers at one time and demonstrate their products and services."

One of Thursday's special sessions is "Benefits of Improving Soil Health" featuring Buz Kloot, a professor at the University of South Carolina. He will talk about the use of cover crops on the farm.

Clemson will offer a special Contained Animal Manure Management (Camm) Training for poultry growers as well as the Small Farmer Mini Conference. This conference is titled "Resources and Markets for Emerging Agricultural and Food Entrepreneurs."

"People need to come both days to take in all the agricultural education, innovation, and connections offered at the 2015 SC AgriBiz & Farm Expo." Martin said.

The Expo will be held at the Florence Civic Center from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. on Jan. 14 and 15. Admission is $5 at the door. For a complete list of events, times, and prices, visit the website at www.scagribizexpo.com.

A Very Merry Christmas

By Blanche Weathers

Christmas Eve has always been my very favorite celebration. It is a day filled with anticipation! As a child, on Christmas Eve, I would sit at the foot of my grandmother's beautiful flocked Frasier fir, adorned with satin balls she had painstakingly beaded and bejeweled. Beneath the tree were all the gifts that would soon be opened. The anticipation was almost more than I could stand.

Hugh and I have modeled that Christmas Eve tradition in our home in Bowman with a few twists of our own. We begin our celebration in our sweet Bowman church for a time of worship and hope. Jesus is coming! We sing beautiful carols, partake of the sacraments, and at the close of the service we hold little candles and pass the flame, one to another, as a symbol of our Savior. Hugh always stands at the front of the sanctuary and leads the singing of "Silent Night." He and Pastor John are the only ones who get to watch as each expectant face is set aglow.

After church, we host a party at our home with country neighbors and friends. Each year the menu varies a little, but there is always clam chowder because Edward, Marie, and Lynn say it's not Christmas Eve without clam chowder. Men love the beef tenderloin and smoked salmon. There are dips and chips, stuffed mushrooms, salads, and an array of sweets.

Lamb Pot Pie

From S.C. Chef Ambassador
Cooper Thomas
Victor's Bistro
Florence, S.C.

This lamb pot pie recipe is hearty enough to stand up to cold holidays. It also uses biscuits as the topping, so it adds a Southern twist to the dish.

2 pounds diced bacon
6 pounds lamb shoulder,
cut in 2-inch pieces
2 potatoes, washed and cut
into 1-inch cubes
2 parsnips, peeled and cut
into ½ inch rounds
2 carrots, peeled and cut
into ½ inch rounds
2 sweet potatoes, cut
into 1-inch cubes
1 cup celery root, peeled and cut into 1-inch cubes
3 cloves of garlic, minced
1 onion, diced
2 teaspoon fresh thyme
2 bay leaves
1 cup red wine
½ cup water
4 cups beef stock
2 teaspoon sugar
¾ cup all purpose flour
10 biscuit dough rounds

Cook bacon over med-high heat until fully browned. Remove the bacon (not fat) and reserve for later. Sauté onion in the bacon fat until translucent. Add flour and cook over low heat for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add liquid ingredients and bring to boil; stir constantly.

Once at boil, turn to low, and add all remaining ingredients. Cook at a soft simmer until the lamb is very tender. Stir periodically. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Pour into a shallow pan and let cool to room temperature. Spoon cooled stew into oven-proof bowls. Top each bowl with biscuit dough (enough to cover). You may need to use several pieces of dough. The rustic look is just fine. Bake the prepared bowls in oven at 350 degrees until the biscuits rise and are golden brown.

Clemson's Special Blue Cheese is Back

Clemson's renowned Blue Cheese, a tasty classic of the South, is once again on the way to becoming a household name.

Clemson Blue Cheese has a fascinating history. The first Clemson University Blue Cheese was cured in Stumphouse Mountain Tunnel in 1941. Today it is produced on Clemson's campus and packaged at Newman Hall.

The boost to the popular cheese came after Watson and Lisa Dorn of Hickory Hill Milk were named to take over production and marketing of the blue cheese. Andrea Meadows of Clemson heads the overall operation.

Both Clemson graduates, the Dorns were already producing old-fashioned whole milk. All of their milk is non-homogenized, which keeps from destroying valuable enzymes. Hickory Hill Milk in Edgefield is a member of the Certified S.C. program.

Dorn said that Clemson had been using homogenized milk all those years, but the rest of the world uses non-homogenized whole milk for blue cheese. "We knew we needed to tweak the formula," he said. He contacted world-renowned cheese authority Neville McNulton, a native of New Zealand who now lives in St. Louis, to help their cheese maker, Anthony Pounders, perfect the recipe.

McNulton visited Clemson several times to oversee the process. By April of this year, the cheese reached the specific goals he had set, and the first batch was set to age. Today the cheese is made exclusively from fresh, old-fashioned milk from Hickory Hill, and Pounders has become a Master Cheesemaker.

Clemson Blue Cheese is an artisan cheese, made the old fashioned way. Each 288-gallon vat makes a batch of about 240 pounds, which is then salted, waxed, and aged for six months. When it is ready, each hoop is scraped and packaged by hand. Each lot is kept separate, and strenuous record keeping assures quality at every step.

The first batch of cheese was ready for sale in September. It is available at The '55 Exchange and East Side Food Court in Clemson, online from the website, and at Bi-Los in the Upstate. Sysco Food Service is handling distribution to restaurants.

"It's amazing the response we've gotten from high-end restaurants," Dorn said. "Many years ago, some of them advertised that they only used Clemson Blue Cheese, and they are very excited to get it again." Since the Dorns took over production and distribution, they had the name "Clemson Blue Cheese" trademarked.

Watson is also responsible for Clemson Blue Cheese salad dressing, which is being co-packed by Dukes Sandwich Company, another Certified S.C. member. "We take them the crumbles, and they blend it for us, using Hickory Hill buttermilk. Then it comes back here for sale," Dorn explained. Gerrad Bruce of Duke Sandwich Co. is also a Clemson graduate.

Due to special vacuum-sealed packaging, Clemson Blue Cheese has a long shelf life. It can be stored in the freezer or refrigerator for up to three months. Once opened, it will store for up to three weeks. It is shipped year-round.

Juniper's Butternut Squash Bisque with Crispy Kale

From S.C. Chef Ambassador
Brandon Velie
Juniper Restaurant
Ridge Spring, S.C.

2 butternut squash peeled,
seeded, diced
2 teaspoons unsalted butter,
melted
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon turmeric
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup onion, chopped
½ cup apple juice
1 ½ cups heavy cream
1 ½ cups Half and Half
Salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium bowl toss squash, 2 teaspoons melted butter, cinnamon, turmeric, and nutmeg until squash is evenly coated. Place on greased baking sheet and roast in oven until tender, approximately 30-40 minutes.

Melt butter in medium pot over medium heat. Add onion and saute for 3 minutes. Add squash and all other ingredients, heat to simmer, and cook for about 20 minutes. Puree with an immersion blender. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve in bowl with crispy kale as a garnish. Makes 4 servings.

Crispy Kale

1-2 fresh kale leaves, stem removed, cut into thin strips
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
Salt and pepper to taste

Place butter in medium saute pan over medium high heat. Once butter melts add kale and saute rapidly, moving around in pan often. Once kale gets crispy take off flame.

Country Christmas Celebration

Families and children across the Midlands enjoyed a Country Christmas Celebration Dec. 6 at the S.C. State Farmers Market. The event included an antique tractor parade, food trucks, and visits with our very special guest, Santa Claus.

Merry Christmas

Our neighbor Mary says tomato pie is her favorite. While everything in our Christmas Eve feast may not be Certified SC Grown, we do our best to make it Certified SC Delicious.

Hugh and I and our family send our Christmas greetings to all of you. We hope your holidays are filled with the anticipation of Jesus' coming and that your homes are genuinely, certifiably blessed. Merry Christmas!

Christmas Eve Clam Chowder

1 stick butter
1 8 oz. can minced clams, drained. Save the liquid.
In a large saucepan melt butter and sauté clams for 15 minutes.
Add:
3 cans of New England clam chowder
3 cans cream of potato soup
1 quart milk
2 cups Half and Half
Salt and pepper
Reserved clam liquid
Simmer and serve.

Blanche's Tomato Pie

This one is a little harder to share because I make it differently each time. I find by using cream cheese the pie is not quite as runny. This summer I had the privilege of serving as a judge for a tomato pie contest. It was a really good idea until about the 10th pie!

However, I found some interesting combinations you might like to know about. Some pies had an egg to help hold the filling together, more like quiche. Some had goat cheese, not my favorite, or bacon. One of the contestants had added hot sauce and topped with Parmesan cheese. I did like that one.

Here is a rough go at the measurements for my pie. You can find tomatoes at the State Farmers Market year 'round. I think the ones I get at the Market are better than in the grocery store, but I won't swear by it.

1 9" pie crust
½ yellow onion, chopped, or one bunch of spring onions, diced
4 nice sized tomatoes, sliced and placed on paper towels to drain
¼ cup fresh basil, julienned
1 cup grated cheese: sharp cheddar, Monterey jack or gruyere
4 ounces cream cheese
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup sour cream
Salt and pepper
Frank's Hot Sauce, optional

Mix together the cream cheese, mayonnaise, sour cream, hot sauce and basil and let that sit overnight.

The next day, place pie crust in pan and bake at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes, until slightly brown.

You can sauté the chopped onion but I usually don't. Layer salted and peppered tomato slices, onion and cream cheese mixture. I usually do two layers. Top with grated cheese and bake at 350 degrees for about 30 to 45 minutes.

I actually triple this recipe and line a 9 x 13-inch pan with the crusts, which makes it more like a casserole than a pie. Try your own variations.

Titan Farms Owner Appointed to National Ag Board

Chalmers Carr III of Ridge Spring has been appointed to the National Agricultural Research, Extension, Education, and Economics Advisory Board. Carr is the owner and president of Titan Farms, a diverse family farm that grows peaches, bell pepper, and broccoli. With more than 5,000 acres, Titan Farms grows more peaches than the entire state of Georgia!

Carr is involved from the office to the field, overseeing operations from the daily packing of the peaches to laying plastic and monitoring irrigation. He is a member of the S.C. Agriculture Commission, treasurer of the S.C. Peach Council, chairman of the S.C. Farm Bureau Labor Committee, and past chairman of the American Farm Bureau Labor Committee.

He also serves on the executive board of the Palmetto AgriBusiness Council and is a member of the Palmetto Institute Ag Advisory Board Executive Committee.

After earning his degree in Agricultural Economics from Clemson University, Carr came to Ridge Spring in 1995 to manage R.W. DuBose & Sons Inc., a family-owned peach operation. He and his wife Lori Anne leased the farm in 1999 and were able to buy the entire operation in 2001. Mrs. Carr is vice president and administrative manager of the farm and is in charge of marketing. They have two children, Chalmers IV and Carly Anne.

"Here at Titan Farms we recognize the importance of technology and strive to use it to benefit America's consumers and to protect our precious natural resources," Carr said. "Our farm stretches over about 15 square miles of Edgefield, Saluda and Aiken Counties. The use of computers allows for precise irrigation and accurate record keeping, and we are able to control water distribution to all parts of our farm from one location."

The modern packing facility enables Titan to ship the highest quality and the safest fruit in the marketplace. In addition to peaches, Titan Farms grows 385 acres of bell pepper and 325 acres of broccoli.

Carr represents the Plant Commodity Producer category of U.S. agriculture stakeholders. The board advises U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack and land-grant colleges and universities on top national priorities and policies for food and agriculture research, education, extension, and economics.

December is Optimal Time to Plant Seedlings

S.C. Forestry Commission Selling Tree Seedlings for Winter Planting

The first day of December is traditionally the start of planting season for tree seedlings, and the South Carolina Forestry Commission is encouraging landowners to place their orders while seedlings are still available.

Buyers have access to the full catalog of Forestry Commission seedlings grown and sold at its Taylor Nursery in Edgefield County. Offerings include more than 50 bare-root and containerized varieties of trees, shrubs and grasses. Bestsellers include bald cypress seedlings for wetland areas, crabapple and Chickasaw plum varieties for wildlife attraction, and many species of loblolly and longleaf pine for timber production.

Taylor Nursery has 17 selections of pine, 14 types of oaks and native trees such as persimmon, red cedar, Atlantic white cedar, dogwood, and other hardwoods. "For those who haven't already made their selections, now is the time to act," said Tim Adams, SCFC Resource Development Director. "Planting conditions are good over much of the state; soil moisture is optimal because of the recent rainfall."

The purpose of the Forestry Commission's seedling program is to provide a diverse selection of genetically improved seedlings to land owners for timber and Christmas tree production as well as wildlife and wetland habitat improvements.

Seedling orders can be shipped via United Parcel Service (UPS) or picked up at the Commission's Taylor Nursery in Edgefield County. For more information go to the website, www.state.sc.us/forest/nur.htm, or call Taylor Nursery at 803-275-3578.
